Telecorp Inc. gets busy with Canadian Federal Election

Company Targets Leadership Position in Automated CRM Market

Barrie, ON, September 16, 2008/PRNewswire – TeleCorp, Inc. a leading provider of communication solutions is experiencing a busy third quarter with the Federal election in Canada.

Telecorp and its subsidiary Euphorik Fuel Technologies is experiencing growth due to the unexpected Federal Election in Canada. With software systems being purchased and utilized by both Conservative Party of Canada and Liberal Party of Canada, Telecorp's staff are working to support each party on their goals on being elected across Canada.

"It is with great pleasure and deep appreciation that Telecorp can help communicate with voters for this election." said Paul Phillips President of Telecorp "We strive to give each party unbiased support and service and make sure in every case we achieve not only the parties national but local goals as well."

Each system depending on the message, can deliver approximately 700 to 900 voice messages and thousands of e-mails per day. Most riding offices have a minimum of two systems or more for each riding office.

"This is our second year with Telecorp" said Rene Gaudreau Liberal Party of Canada I.T. Support Administrator "and we have only experienced quality service and support and look forward to continued campaigns as we discover more uses of our systems, even beyond elections."

Telecorp systems allow various users to conduct surveys, bulk e-mails and voice messages from local candidates and from other party members as well, to help deliver key messages and obtain critical response from voters and its constituents.

"We use TeleCorp's system for a variety of purposes to inform our constituents of number of issues so we can gain immediate feedback" said Brandon Phillips office administrator for Patrick Brown MP Conservative Party of Canada.

The Canadian Federal Election is on October 14, 2008.
